Today's Session:
Ensuring Equity, Diversity and Inclusion in Your Programs and Organization

Polls: Who's Here Today

Important Definitions

Diversity

Differences between us based on which we may experience advantages or encounter barriers in access to opportunities or resources

Inclusion

Celebrating, valuing, and amplifying perspectives, voices, styles, values, and identities that have been marginalized (not tolerating, accommodating, or overcoming difference).

Equity & Justice

Equity is the approach to ensuring everyone has access to the same resources or opportunity (such as clean water). Equity recognizes that advantages and barriers exist, and that as a result we all don't all start from the same place Justice is the outcome of equity efforts.

Cultural Competence

The ability to interact across various dimensions of diversity; to flex with differences

Important Definitions

Equality vs. Equity vs. Justice

Important Definitions

Diversity is what we are.

Inclusion is what we do.

Equity is how we do it.

Cultural competence is what we need to do it well.

Justice is an outcome.

Why is EDI Important to Your / Your Org.?
(please use the chat box)

Why is EDI important...?

To your organization:

- Allows it to perform better and make better decisions
- Opens the door to funding opportunities (esp. race/ethnicity)
- Helps manage liability concerns, inc. of discrimination, hostile work place
- Makes for happier staff & volunteers

Why is EDI important...?

To people:

- For health and wellness - everyone should have access to healthy rivers & waterways, and drinking water
- For thriving communities – clean environment and safe drinking water is part of a healthy economy
- For equitable access to public waters in inclusive ways
- For recognizing the many ways humans connect with nature based on their culture and history
- For addressing disproportionate impacts of water threats to low income communities and people of color

Why is EDI important...?

To the future of conservation:

- We need to engage the diverse youth of today to cultivate the next generation of advocates
- Protecting our rivers/waters is a shared right and responsibility

Engaging Latino and Hispanic Communities: Best Practices for Water Groups

Presione aqui para leer este artículo en Español.

In the U.S., many communities of color face environmental racism. Disproportionate exposure to toxins and pollution occur in areas primarily inhabited by communities of color, including areas with large Latino or

Articulating Our Commitment

Our Commitment to Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion

All people have a right to clean and ample water that sustains life. To achieve this right for all communities, it is imperative for the river and watershed community to build a more diverse, equitable and inclusive movement. River Network is committed to being a catalyst and partner in this transformation.

Biases and disparities disproportionately burden communities of color, indigenous communities, and low-income communities with legacies of environmental damage and on-going harm that limit their access to healthy, life-sustaining waters. All voices must be included in River Network's work to achieve more equitable solutions. Just as biodiversity strengthens natural systems, water protection work is made stronger by the contributions, experiences, perspectives, and values of different people and communities.

River Network is committed to building on its history in working with others by embracing diversity, equity and inclusion in all areas to achieve our mission. Through our programs we seek to connect with all communities and increase the impact of their efforts to secure clean and ample water. River Network will be intentional about our staffing and engagement practices and strive to increase the diversity of our staff, vendors, board, members, and supporters with strategic recruitment and partnerships and an inclusive work place culture.

River Network invites dialogue with partners working on these issues to seek guidance and develop collaborations. By expanding our reach, River Network intends to go beyond traditional cultural and social boundaries to become more effective in building an equitable and inclusive river and watershed movement. We invite all communities to join us in this journey of transformation.

Articulating Our Commitment

Our Commitment to Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion

All people have a right to clean water and to achieve this goal.

Why Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion are the Foundation of River Network's Mission

Water is sacred, and necessary for all life. Healthy rivers producing clean, affordable water are a fundamental human right, the foundation of our dignity, health, economy, environment and quality of life. Every human being needs water, but not every human being has equal access to it. Threats to water affect vulnerable communities the most, and yet these communities are seen and heard from the least in the mainstream water conservation community. River Network's commitment to equity, diversity, and inclusion is not apart from our mission, but the path forward to achieving it. Addressing water disparities provides us with a moral and strategic opportunity to build a stronger river movement, aligning people of varied ages, races, economic conditions, and other identities.

With focus, determination and humility, we ask these questions of ourselves: Who must we work alongside and what issues must we engage in to live true to our beliefs? Is our work successful if it is not equitable? What are the gaps in our knowledge, relationships and resources? How do we better balance both human and ecological needs? What do we need to change to make our work more inviting to a broader range of people? What is possible if we can help to create a larger, more diverse river movement?

Our mission is to connect all people, not just some people, in order to protect and restore all rivers and waters, not just the wild and the pristine. Our understanding of this promise has evolved over decades, from

Quadrant 1: External Relations

THE WORK- Examine your externally facing work (i.e., what you do and how you work in the community), and whether/how equity and inclusion are reflected in that work.

Quad 1 Strategies: External Relations

- Build and maintain mutually beneficial partnerships (that outlast funding!)
- Use culturally competent communications (messaging & images) and step into intersectional spaces
- Commit to learning and growing – solicit feedback and welcome it as a gift
- Examine your work through the lens of equity (see River Network's Equity Tool)

Rural America: We have a water problem that runs coast to coast, with significant injustice to low income, African-American, and Latino populations. This excellent article tells just one of many stories. The importance of water to life demands our attention.

Quad 1 Strategies: Equity Tool

DRAFT Equity Assessment Tool

This tool is designed to help River Network operationalize our commitments to equity and inclusion through our work, with a focus on increasing equity on the bases of race/ethnicity and class/income.

Who will implement this tool?

The tool will primarily be used by River Program and Development staff.

Where should we deploy this tool?

- Phase 1 (Year 1) – Test out and refine the tool with our strategic plan’s Strengthen our Network and Build Strong Champions core strategies. This includes River Rally.
- Phase 2 (Year 2) – Explore how the tool can be applied with the two remaining core strategies, Leverage our Voices and Grow our Network.

When should this tool be deployed?

The tool should be integrated into River Network’s routine operations in a systematic way. The following are touchstones for when the tool should be deployed either in full or in brief:

- Developing ideas for new programs, through white papers, concept papers or other means;
- Drafting funding proposals, in particular in multi-year or large-scale proposals, proposals for new

Analysis Tool: A Detailed Approach

Questions to help identify considerations of inclusion and equity

(Note: To answer some of these questions with greater certainty, we might need to collect additional data. Data collection may be a next step or may be incorporated into project funding proposals)

Q: Who is positively and negatively affected by this issue and how? Do people in disadvantaged racial, social and economic groups face unique challenges related to this program/initiative?

Q: What policies, processes or relationships contribute to exclude the voices and priorities of those most affected by inequities? How is this program/project shifting those power dynamics? Will it increase or decrease ethnic/racial and class/income equity?

Q: Are River Network resources and investments distributed fairly and equitably across ethnic/racial and class/income lines?

Q: How are we meaningfully including those most impacted in identifying issues, proposing solutions and making decisions?

Q: What people or groups already support equity, justice and sustainability around this issue and how can we collaborate with them?

Q: Which stakeholders do we have relationships with that we could collaborate with on this program? Who is missing that we could develop relations with?

Q: How do the goals or desired outcomes we have articulated address impacts and provide benefits to both the ecology and the community?

Q: How will we ensure we maintain relationships with program / project partners after the project is completed? In what ways can we continue to support them after the funding ends?

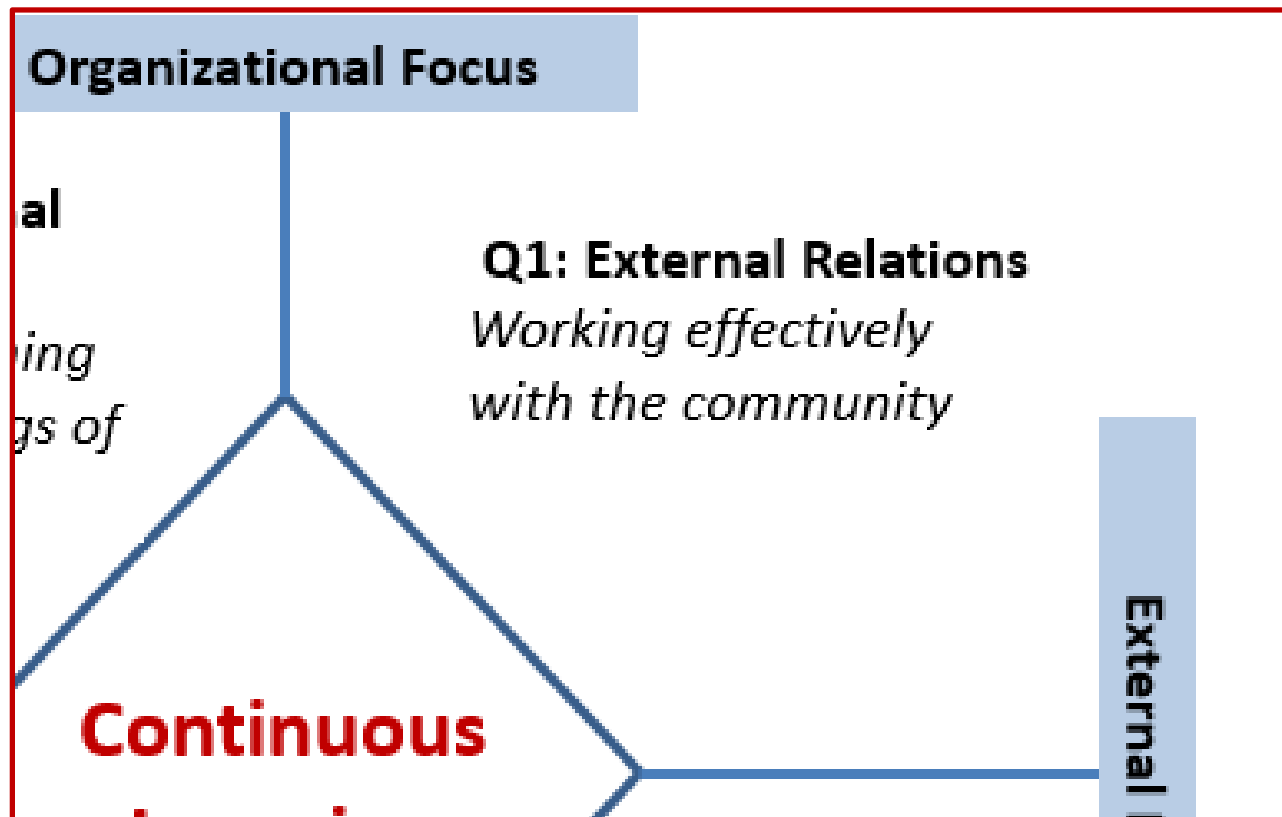

2. We set a table for all.

5. We partner with others who know more than us.

4. We value human and ecological needs.

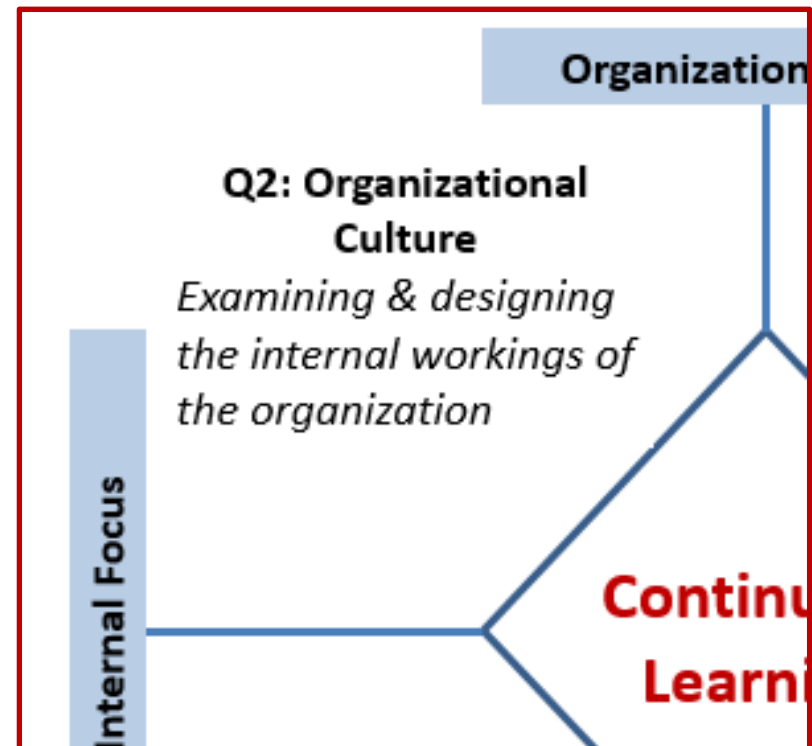

6. We build and maintain relationships that outlast funding.

Question: How are you bringing inclusion and equity into your organization's work in the External Relations quadrant? (use chat box)

Quadrant 2: Organizational Culture

THE WORK- Reflect on your organization's culture (i.e., systems, policies & structures) and whether they support incorporating the skills, experiences and ways of interacting that a diverse team brings

Quadrant 2 Strategies: Org. Culture

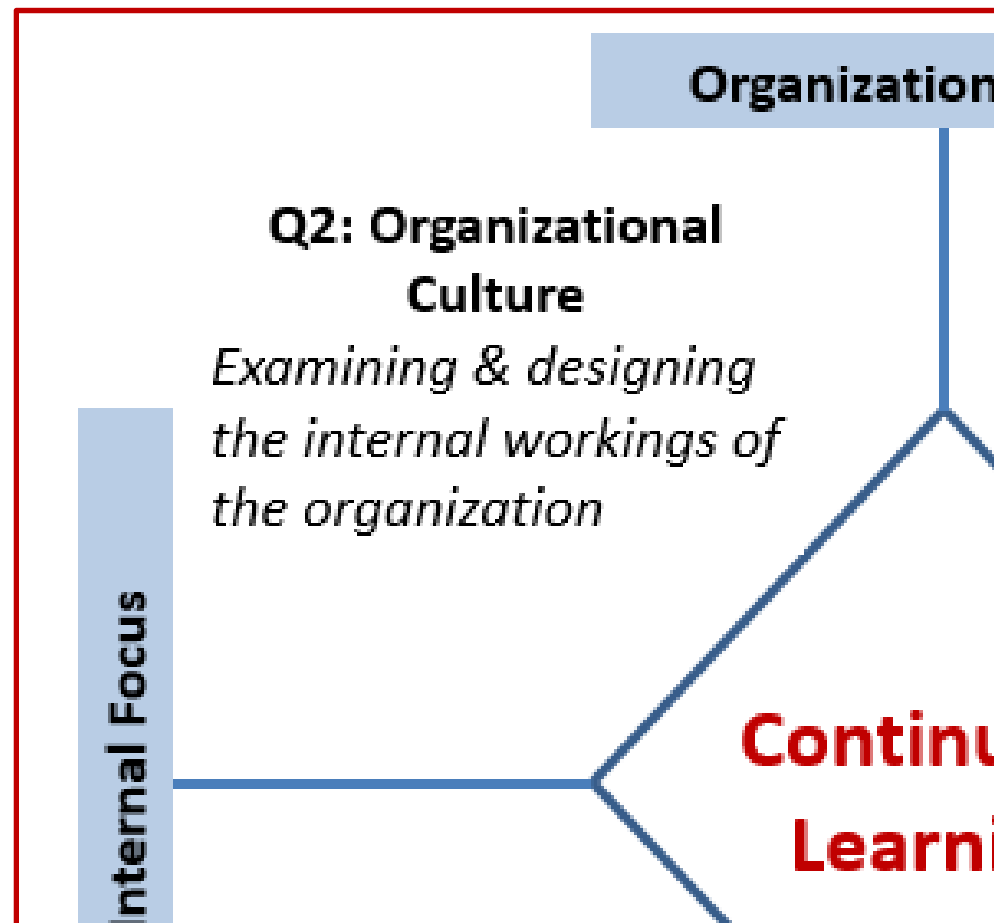

- Evaluate your hiring and retention practices for bias – recruitment & hiring, compensation, evaluations, promotions, access to mentoring and professional development, etc.
- Make the physical work spaces more inclusive
- Make EDI training available to staff
- Develop an “Inclusive Team Charter”
- Understand dominant culture traits and be intentional about what norms and standards you follow

Quadrant 2: Organizational Culture

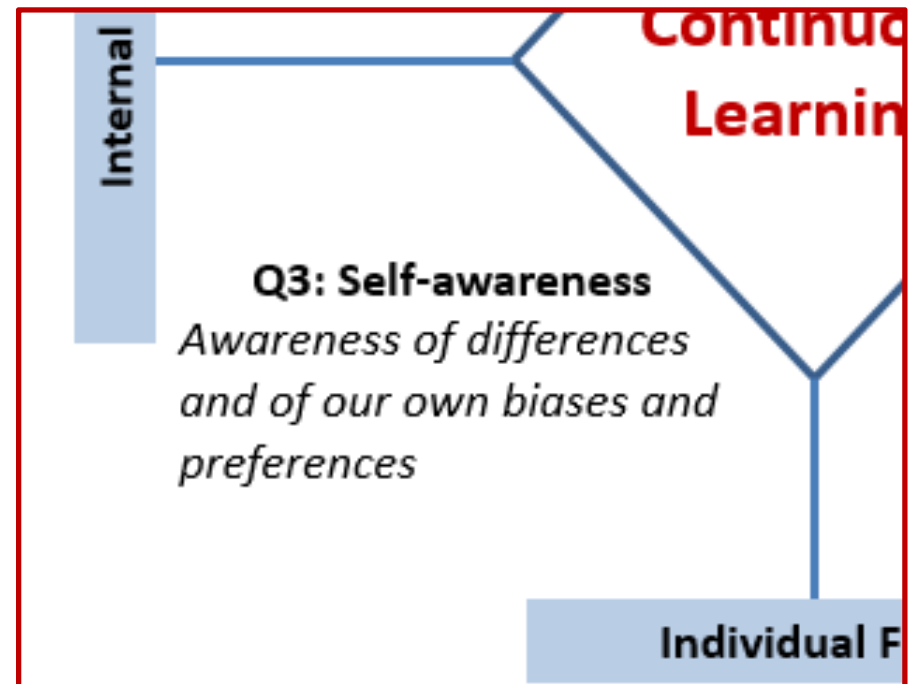

THE LONGER YOU SWIM
IN A CULTURE, THE MORE
INVISIBLE IT BECOMES

Question: Have you examined your org's culture?
What steps might you take to make it more inclusive and supportive of diversity? (use chat box)

Quadrant 3: Self-Awareness

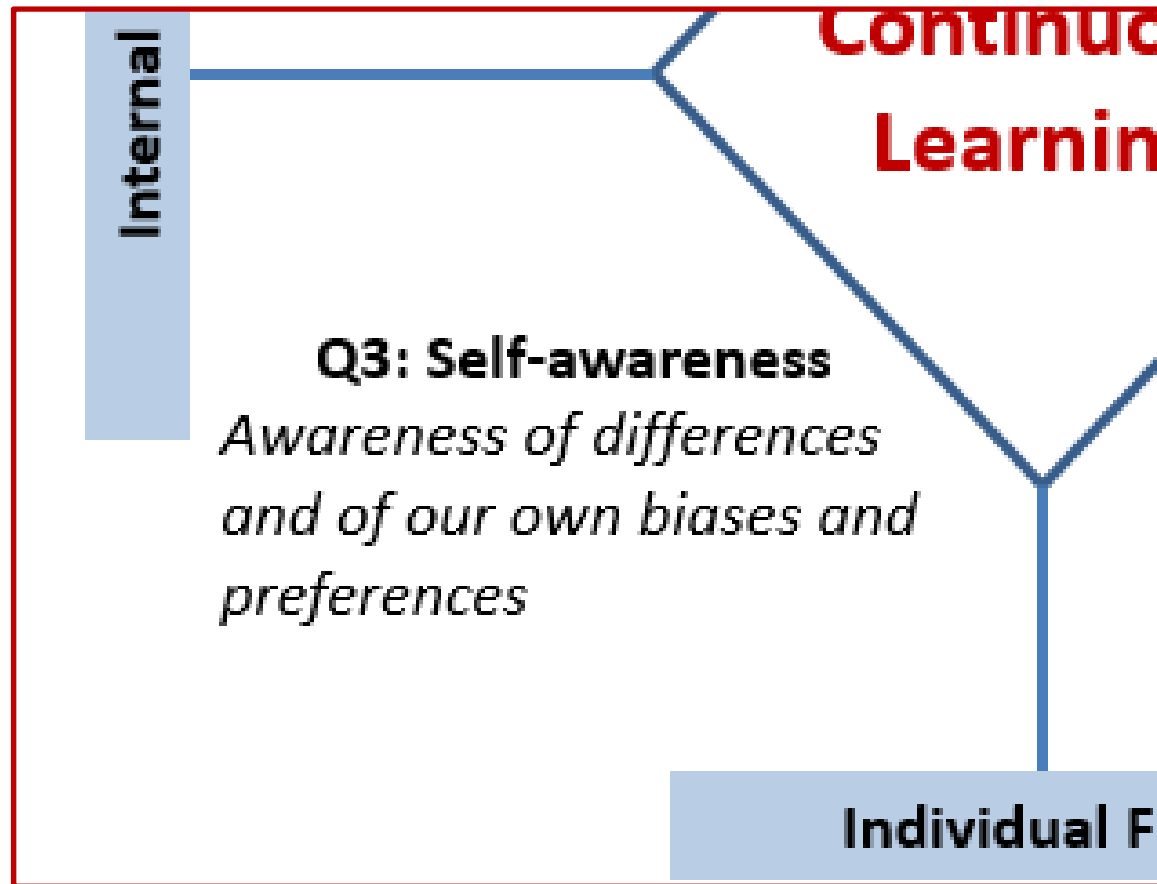

THE WORK- Increase your awareness and understanding of your individual biases and how they show up and your understanding of your privileges

Quad 3 Strategies: Self-Awareness

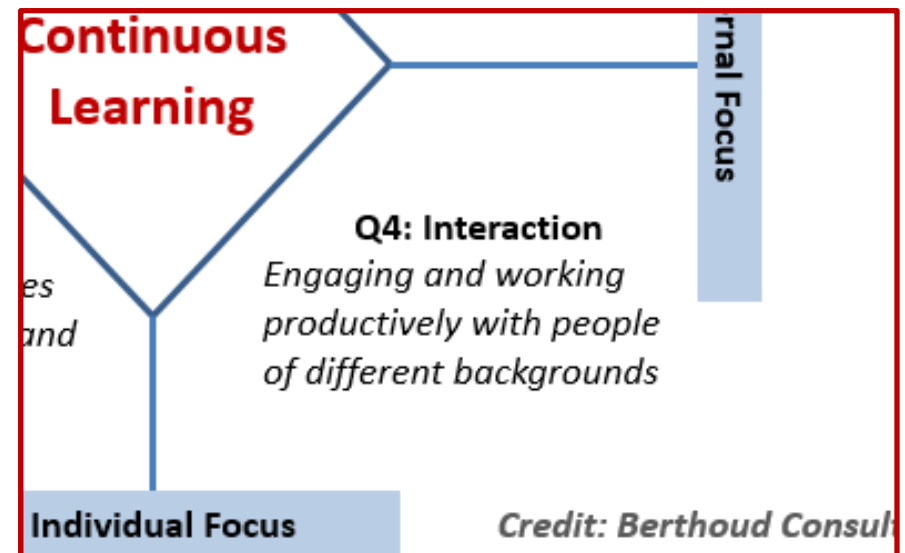

- Expose yourself to diverse voices and perspectives (e.g. books/book clubs, podcasts, social media)
- Explore your own biases (Project Implicit)
- Disrupt your own biases
- Participate in training(s) to learn the history / experiences of marginalized communities; develop skills in analyzing structural racism and systems of oppression
- Make space for others - lift up the voices and perspectives of those not typically heard
- Caucus with your own affinity groups to process the learning and keep accountable for taking action

Question: How have you / could you increase your own awareness of your own preferences and biases? (please use chat box)

Quadrant 4: Interaction

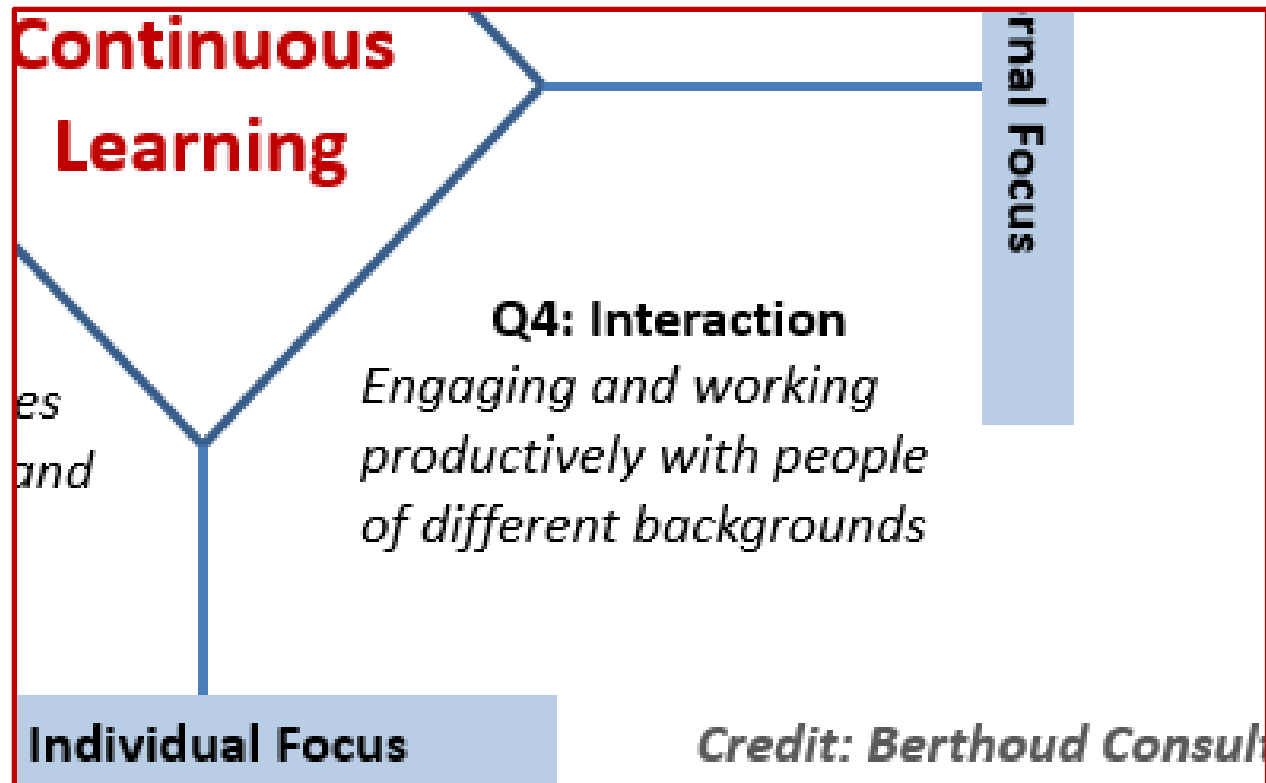

THE WORK- Reflect on how you relate to and work with individuals of different backgrounds, and learn to communicate effectively across differences, build relations, resolve conflict and solve problems together

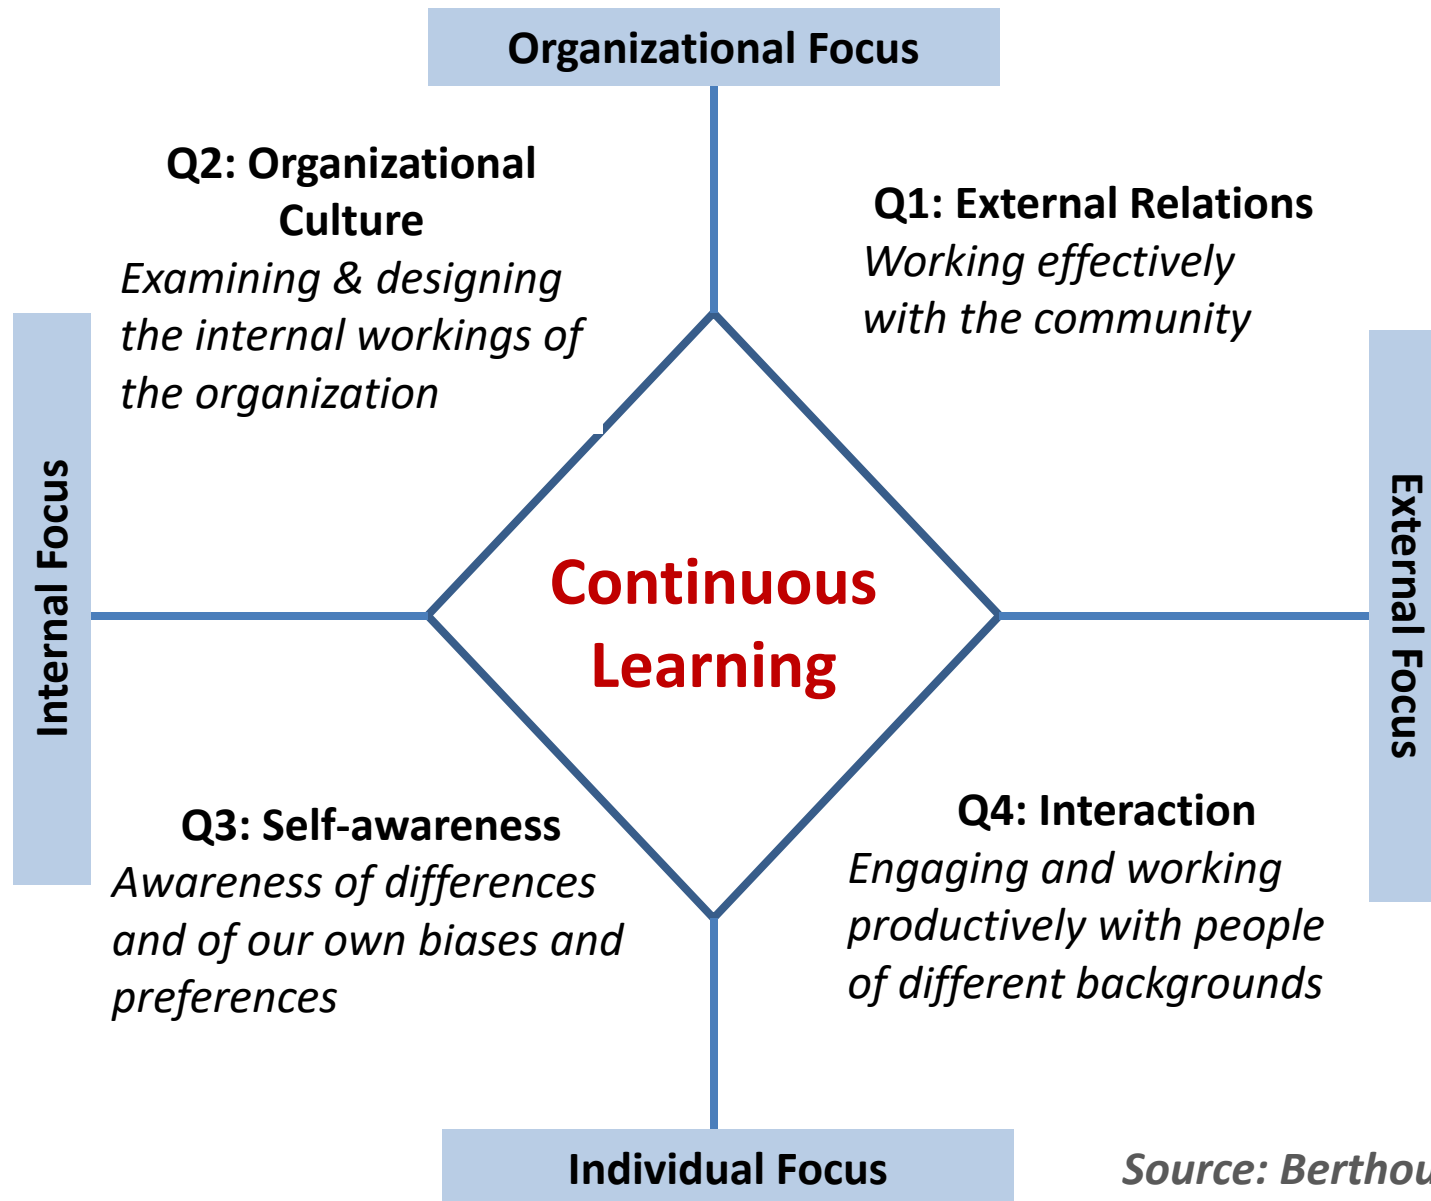

Quadrant 4 Strategies: Interaction

- Disrupt bias when you observe it in individuals or in your organization
- Use inclusive language
- Commit to learning and growing – solicit feedback and welcome it as a gift

Question: What steps have you taken (or could) to foster better interactions with people of different backgrounds? (please use chat box)

Strategy for Continuous Learning- Change Teams

Change Team – a working committee w. overarching goal of providing leadership and momentum around EDI initiatives.

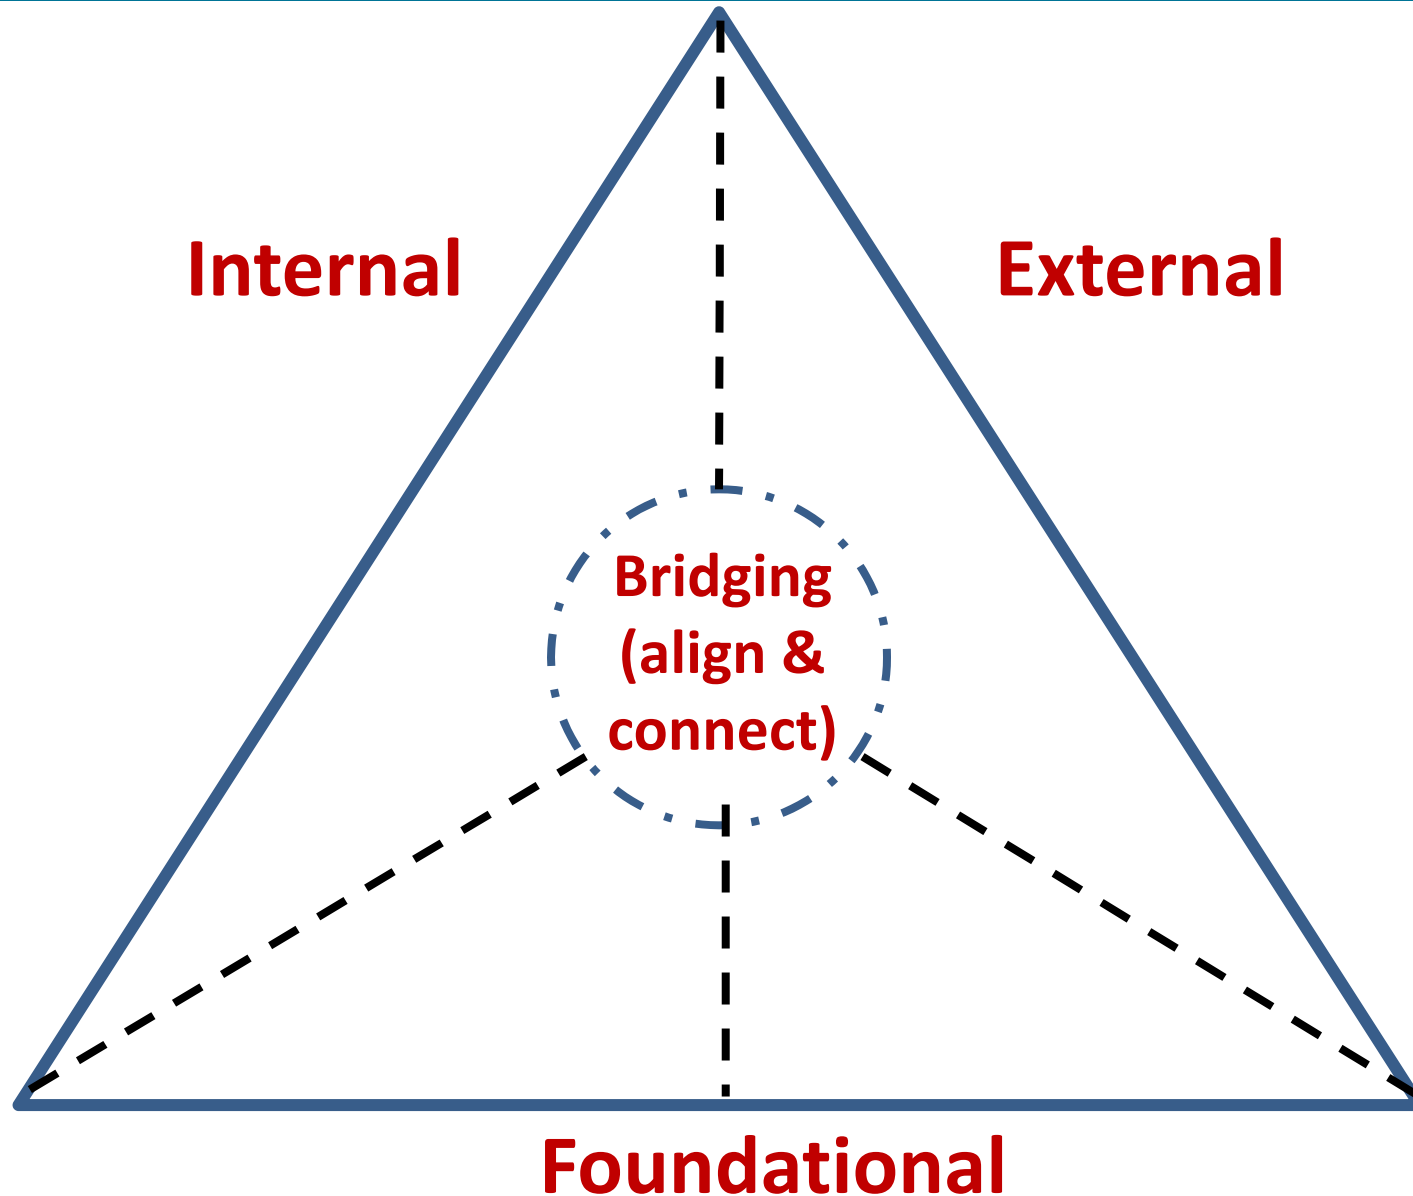

Strategy for Continuous Learning- Change Teams

Duties:

1. Lead and organize process towards becoming a more equitable, inclusive social change organization
2. Lead process to assess the organization today
3. Lead a visioning process with the org. – what would we look like if we were more E-D-I? Create a sense of urgency
4. Help establish specific, clear, and meaningful goals for reaching the vision. Focus first on short-term wins.
5. Build community and move the organization to collective action
6. Ensure the integration of the work of the change team with program work
